The funds allotted to the board for the fiscal year are nearly exhausted and it is necessary to have this amount in order that the work may be maintained. Five new teachers were added to the staff and 500 more tons of coal were consumed this year than in any other years. The reason given was because of the in- crease in population in Stratford.

Moorie Beth Estate

If there is still among the assets of the defunct banking firm of Burr & Knapp $1,500 which Morrie E. Beth had on deposit there it will go to Hattie K. Seward. Morrie E. Beth died several years ago without a will leaving a cash deposit at the Burr & Knapp bank. As the close friends of the deceased, both Hattie K. Seward and Mrs. Mary Emmons claimed the money. A hearing was first held before the late Judge Edward F. Hallen. Hearings have been before Judge Paul L. Miller and at the last session of the general assembly by special act it was decided that if no blood relations appeared to claim the estate by January 31 this year the cash should go to Mrs. Seward. Judge Miller has made this award and Mrs. Seward is taking legal steps to procure the estate.

Change In Street

Grade Damaged Land,

Declares Jennings

Alleging that his Fairfield avenue property has been damaged to the extent of $5,000 by the change in street grade, Nehemiah Jennings appeared before Judge Webb in the superior court this morning to testify in his suit against the city of Bridgeport. The Jennings property fronted on Fairfield avenue but extends in the rear to Ash Creek.

W. H. Palmer, a civil engineer, testified that it would require 4,000 yards of dirt at a cost of 75 or 80 cents a yard, to fill in the frontage. B. C. Spargo, called by City Attorney W. H. Conley, Jr., said he thought the filling could be done at a cost of about $500 if enough time were allowed so that it would not be necessary to buy all the dirt at once. Attorneys Cullinan & Cullinan represented Jennings. The court reserved decision.

Pile Driver For New Grand Street Bridge Arrives in This City

When work is begun on the new East Washington avenue bridge the old bridge will be closed to travel until the new one is completed. Whether or not the work will be delayed until the Grand Street bridge is built, has not been decided. The bridge commission has decided that in its present condition there is little traffic over the East Washington avenue bridge and that traffic might, without seriously discommending anyone, be directed over the Congress street bridge while the new bridge is building.

The pile driver of Edward Devoe Tompkins, Inc., of New York, whose engineers will build both bridges, arrived in the city yesterday. Test piles 90 feet in length will be driven first to find bed rock and make sure of the depth before the construction is begun. It has been estimated that it will cost $30,000 to keep the old East Washington Avenue bridge open while the new bridge is being built and the commission have decided this will be too costly.

A Strange Toast.

There used to be a curious toast which one of the Scottish regiments quartered at Edinburgh castle in the early years of last century was accustomed to drink at mess. The toast was, "A clean sword and a dirty Bible." If the sword had to be drawn it must only be in the cause of honor, for the protection of the weak, for the defense of the helpless. The dirty Bible meant a Bible whose leaves were thumbed and frayed with constant use. The second condition secures the first, for the Bible is the foundation of civility and honor and the only effective and enduring antidote to strife between man and man. — London Standard.

Took It Literally.

Just outside Stockport, on the Great Central railway, is a station named Hyde.

The other day a farm laborer was somewhat startled on arriving at the station by hearing the guard shout "Hyde!" The station master, in a raucous voice, also shouted "Hyde!" and several porters took up the refrain, "Hyde Hyde!"

Wondering what could be the matter, but thinking discretion the better part of valor, the man immediately got under the seat, and it was there the ticket collector found him when the train reached Stockport.—London Tit-Bits.

Hot Water and a Glass.

Why does a glass break when hot water is put into it and does not break when it is put into hot water? The hot water inside the glass makes the layers on the inside tend to expand. But they cannot expand, being held fast by the colder outer layers, so they buckle on themselves and the glass breaks.

When, however, we dip the glass into boiling water it is the outer layers that tend to expand. They have room to do it, not being compressed by the inner layers, and they gradually drag these inner layers with them as the heat spreads to the latter. So there is nothing to make the glass break.

Billinggate to Chancery Lane.

"Billinggate" is now scarcely heard, we are told, at Billinggate. The epithet must be disestablished. What shall take its place? Dickens, who knew London thoroughly, places about the worst and most forcible language to be found in his novels in the mouth of Smalweed, a denizen of the purlieus of Chancery lane!—London Standard.

Blackbird Days.

Jan. 30 and 31 and Feb. 1 are famous at Constantinople, Brescia and along the Danube and the Rhine as the "blackbird days." A curious legend says that originally all species of grackles (blackbirds) were white and that they became black because during one year in the middle ages the three days mentioned above were so cold that all the birds in Europe took refuge in the chimneys. At Brescia the three days are celebrated with a feast called "I giorni della merla," or "the feast of the transformation of the bird."

RICH GREENWICH WOMAN FIGHTING BILL OF PLUMBER

The refusal of Ina M. Perkins, a wealthy Greenwich woman, to pay $80 for the installation of two wash bowls in her country home, resulted in a lawsuit which was carried from the Greenwich justice court to the common pleas court. Isaac W. Hubbard, a Greenwich plumber, brought the suit and he was awarded $34.50 damages by Judge Scott today. He claimed the contract called for the defendant to pay $30 when the bowls were put in. She said the contract price was $15 and she refused to pay any more. The plumber won a verdict in the justice court but an appeal was taken.
